

Magist and the Brazilian market

Evaluation and recommendations

Brazil has the highest iPhone prices in the world

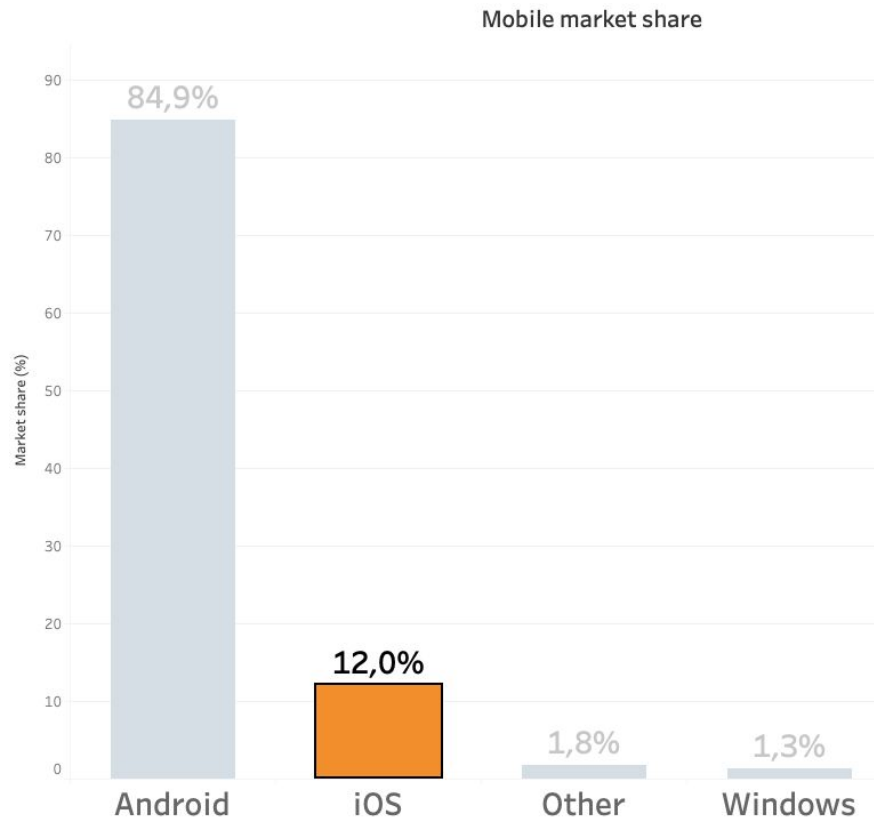

The iPhone XS launch price in Brazil is ~$1,936 USD, around double the US launch price of $999 USD.

Brazil's mobile market: little room for Apple

Tariffs and affordability concerns create a market dominated by Android.

Even average price of Eniac's products is higher than the most expensive 20% of Magists products

Products priced above €145 belong to the most expensive 20% of tech products from Magist.

Average price for a product from Eniac: 540 €

Tech suffers from slower deliveries...

Average delivery times:

- All orders: 12.5 days
- Tech orders over 600 EUR: 16 days.

Delivery times jump for Eniac's average order range

...customer satisfaction falls

Longer deliveries, worse reviews

Recommendations & Future Scope

Why Magist is a risk

Mass-market focus

Only 3% of tech products sold exceed €500 vs. Eniac's avg of €540

Slow delivery

Average 16-day delivery time; late orders cause severe satisfaction drop

Brand risk

Premium brand reputation at risk with a mass-market partner

⊗ Do not sign the 3-year agreement with Magist

Future scope

01

Launch in SP first

SP, RJ, MG hold most high-value buyers. Start with a local warehouse in SP to reduce shipping costs.

02

Local supply chain

Partner with local manufacturers and suppliers to navigate tariff issues on accessories.

Hypothesis

3. Review Brazil as market
 - a. Is Magist growing?
 - b. Is tech growing faster than the rest?

Brazil has e-commerce revenue comparable to Spain and Italy. The Brazilian premium-tech market appears underdeveloped within Magist's ecosystem.
